

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS LOAN REPAYMENT PROGRAM FAQ

WHAT IS THE NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS LOAN REPAYMENT PROGRAM (LRP)?

The National Health Service Corps (NHSC) works with communities to recruit health care professionals committed to serving the needs of underserved populations. The Loan Repayment Program (LRP) is a competitive program in the NHSC that makes contract awards to clinicians that agree to serve full- or half-time at approved sites in designated health professional shortage areas (HPSAs) of greatest need. In return for this service, NHSC LRP participants receive money to repay qualifying educational loans that are still owed.

WHAT IS A HEALTH PROFESSIONAL SHORTAGE AREAS (HPSAS)?

There are approximately 4,900 sites that exist nationwide in rural, frontier, and urban settings serving more than 9.7 million individuals. To find a HPSA in your state, please go to <http://hpsafind.hrsa.gov/>. The federal government criteria for a HPSA include:

- The geographic area is rational for the delivery of health services.
- A specified population-to-clinician ratio representing shortage is exceeded within the area.
- Resources in contiguous areas are overutilized, excessively distant, or otherwise inaccessible.
